

Pieter Cannoot is a PhD researcher at the Human Rights Centre and the Constitutional Law Research Group of Ghent University (Belgium). His doctoral research concerns the protection of the right to personal autonomy of LGBTIQ+ persons. In this regard, he studies to what extent the creation of a constitutional right to the autonomous experience of sex, gender identity, gender expression and sexual orientation would enhance the status of LGBTIQ+ persons in the (Belgian) legal order. His research stay in Utrecht was used to work on this project, considering the vast expertise within UCERF on the relationship between gender and the law.
